Mark Greenberg has been with Caliper since 1993. In his current role as SVP, Client Relations, he oversees Caliper's Client Services team that provides expert consulting on the Caliper Profile to Caliper's clients. In addition to providing strategic direction for the team, Mark works one-on-one with clients to guide them in their hiring and employee development decisions. His areas of expertise include a deep understanding of the Caliper instrument and how to use it to help clients from the selection through the succession of talent. Mark also serves on Caliper's Board of Directors.

Prior to working with Caliper, Mark spent ten years in the sales and management arena, including a five-year period managing a location for Berlitz language schools, as well as a five-year stint working for the federal government.

Mark obtained his Bachelor's degree in Political Science at Pitzer College and his MBA in Marketing at George Washington University. He also holds teaching certifications for elementary education, social studies, and business education.
